School board picks Dr. Kelleher

In Political Files

Officials at the Washington Unified School District announced Monday that the district's school board has unanimously voted to award a one-year contract as superintendent to Dr. Dennis Kelleher effective July 1.

Kelleher is currently the district's assistant superintendent of pupil services. But he has been serving as an "acting superintendent" for the district since Dr. David Miller announced his resignation from the top spot effective the end of this month, and the school board (by at least a majority vote) opted to place Miller on vacation for the remainder of his term.

"I'm very pleased that the board had confidence to appoint me unanimously and I will work extremely hard to be worthy of their confidence," Kelleher said Tuesday.

He said he would try to bring new focus to improving instructional programs in the district's schools.

"I want to certainly work on improving communication between the board and the staff, increase community participation and focus on our instructional program. Clearly, I think we need to get textbooks in the hands of children," he said, citing an example of the new focus.

Kelleher holds a doctorate of education from UC Berkeley. He began teaching in 1971 with the Yolo County Office of Education, worked for four years with the Santa Barbara County Office of education (administering alternative education programs), served about 12 years as a program director for the Novato Unified School District, and another four years as assistant superintendent for Plumas County's school district.

He has worked since 1994 for the 5,700-student Washington Unified School District, serving as assistant superintendent for personnel and pupil services.

Kelleher said he may restructure the current breakdown of duties among one superintendent and three superintendent positions at W.U.S.D., perhaps so that he can keep a hand in labor negotiations.

"I do feel I have a good repoire with the bargaining units and I would like to continue to be involved in negotiations," he said.

Kelleher, a Davis resident, has a child at River City High School and another at UC Davis. His wife is a special education instructional aide at Golden State Middle School.

Fireworks show to come to West Sac — two days before July 4

■ City will be treated to fireworks display on July 2, to celebrate opening of new bridge -- but not on Independence Day

The only fireworks West Sacramento residents have seen up close during the last few celebrations of the Fourth of July have been either illegal or on TV.

The city has banned private displays of fireworks within city limits as a fire hazard, and public shows have failed to materialize.

That will change -- somewhat -- in 1997.

West Sacramento plans to spend $10,000 on July 2 for a fireworks display as part of the opening festivities for the new Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge, slated to open that day and help connect the northern and southern halves of the city.

"This is in celebration of the opening of the bridge, which is a big deal for the city," said Larry von Kaenel, assistant to city manager Joe Goeden.

The fireworks are slated to start at 9 p.m., following jazz at 7 p.m. and an opening ceremony at 7:30 p.m.

Von Kaenel joked that although the city did not have a fireworks show planned for the more traditional fireworks display two days later, West Sacramento's July 2 show would "set the tone for the rest of the region because we're so creative."

A city official told the News-Ledger that the city had originally hoped to schedule the bridge opening and fireworks to coincide with July 4, but that the fireworks operators were booked up when the planning was done.

Chamber gets a raise: city okays $30,000 annual contract

■ Chamber of Commerce will receive $30,000 in public funds to perform its duties for the 1997-98 fiscal year

A unanimous city council vote last Wednesday means the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce will receive a $30,000 contract with the city's redevelopment agency to perform public relations duties and serve as a "point of contact" for outside businesses interested in West Sacramento for the fiscal year to begin in July.

The chamber has previously received a $20,000 annual contract from the city, but the new contract will specify duties such as bringing next week's circus (June 19) to town and facilitating the placement of information on the city's business community onto the computer internet, which is currently being handled by a private firm.

"Both councilmember (fellow Montemayor) and I said we were doing this as sort of a one year extension, so we could work out alternatives," said Christopher Cabaldon, a member of the city council. "The contract has not been followed through and that's not a good way to have it."

Cabaldon said he also raised the issue that although "a chamber is an important institution and we ought to have a strong, independent chamber," he believed it was dangerous for the chamber of commerce to become too dependent on public funding.

"As anyone who has been involved with a non-profit organization knows, when you're facing a situation when such a large part of your budget is (from another agency), you pull your punches (with that agency). Having the best chamber money can buy may not be the best thing for either the city or the chamber."

Cabaldon said those comments did not generate a lot of discussion before the 5-0 vote.

RC teacher on leave after porn charges

A chemistry teacher at River City High School has been placed on administrative leave after being charged with ten misdemeanor counts involving child pornography by campus police at U.C. Davis.

David Benning, a veteran RCHS teacher and resident of Dixon, was placed on leave "pending the outcome of the criminal charges which have been filed against him," said a school district press release.

Benning could not be reached for comment. The phone number listed for him had been disconnected as of Tuesday. UCD police did not immediately return calls from the News-Ledger.

The charges involved activity at the UCD Geology Dept., where Benning was a graduate student.

According to a source close to the Washington Unified School District, UCD police believe Bennett "downloaded" pornographic material on a geology department computer on ten occasions.

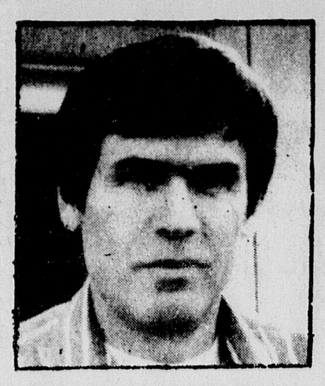
My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Martin Cortez is a likable, 29-year-old giant of a man who suddenly found himself in a very small place -- a prison cell. For 22 months in his early twenties he did hard time at the California Rehabilitation Center at Chino and Tehachapi State Prison in Bakersfield. "What in the world did you do to get yourself into those places?" I asked him, surprised that such a kind and good natured person had spent almost two years of his life in prison.

"I got caught selling drugs," he explained without flinching, although his eyes seemed to be questioning whether the revelation was going to change my high opinion of him.

As our conversation continued, I learned that Martin had started using drugs at the tender young age of 11 and then began selling them when he was only 12. "At first I would just resell some of the marijuana I bought for myself so I could have some extra lunch money, but by the time I was 19, I was selling pounds of the stuff and making as much as $6,000 a week. That was big money for a kid from a farm worker family. Plus I was driving around in a brand new Silverado with a $5,000 stereo system in it. I thought I was pretty hot stuff."

"So how did you get caught?" I asked him.

"Some guys who didn't like me tipped off the police. They arrested me on the street, took me back to my apartment, and found enough evidence there to charge me with eight felonies."

"What was prison like?"

"Hard. Really hard. Gangs tried to recruit me. Plus older guys tried to befriend the young for sex. They were always testing you. If you couldn't defend yourself, you were in big trouble."

Martin seemed to sense that I was still finding it difficult to get my head around what he was telling me (he is now a senior at the University of California, Davis with a bright future in front of him), so he decided to try and put it all into context for me. "When I was young," he explained, "a lot of my friends and relatives were into doing and selling drugs. Most of them were good people, hard working people, but they just couldn't make it on minimum wage jobs. I'm not trying to make any excuses, but that's the way it was. They didn't even have the transportation to get to a low paying job. But they wanted the good life, too, and drugs were one of the few ways to get there. Unfortunately, it still is. And just by being around that scene, you end up getting involved. Plus the more you're around it, the more the fear factor diminishes. And when you're young, you just can't get up and leave the environment anyway, although to tell you the truth, I didn't really want to. For many poor young people, doing drugs is a lot like getting to go to Magic Mountain. You drink beer all night long, take crank or do lines of cocaine and try to forget your troubles. The problem is that when you start getting into drugs, no one really explains the downside to you. They don't tell you that you're going to end up hurting a lot of other people and probably wind up in jail. And no one mentions that you're going to have to carry a weapon around and worry about being killed 24 hours a day. I mean, the first time I really felt safe in years was when they finally put me in that prison cell."

"But it must be a good feeling to know that you've left that all behind you now," I said.

"You never really leave it all behind you," Martin quickly corrected me. "Even now, just talking to you about it makes me uncomfortable."

"Really?"

He nodded his head and said, "And there'll always be temptations. A few years back, right after I got out of prison, an old friend of mine offered me $15,000 just to pick up a kilo for him. Two or three hours of easy work, but it can ruin your whole life. No, my past will never entirely leave me. Although I have an honorable discharge from parole, I have to carry around a drug offender card and register with the police within ten days if I move to a new town. And it will affect my future, too. A lot of employers just don't want anything to do with an ex-felon, especially one who was mixed up with drugs."

At the end of my conversation with Martin, I told him that I write a little bi-weekly column in my local newspaper and that teenagers in my community read it from time to time. I asked him if it would be okay if I printed some of what he had just told me. "Print it all if you think it might make some kid realize that drugs are a dead-end street," he said. "Just make sure you don't glorify any of it, because believe me, there's no glory in any aspect of drugs -- none. And you might want to tell the parents who think it's no big deal if their kids experiment with drugs that they're making it possible for their children to ruin their lives. Parents that turn their heads and don't do anything about it are providing an internship. I have a little eight month old daughter, and believe me, if I have anything to do with it, she'll never be exposed to any part of the drug culture."

I asked Martin if there was any other advice he might want to give to young people who are trying hard to stay drug free. "Just tell them to hang with friends they can trust, people that really care about them, and to try to get the best education they can. And to remember that it's not what you say in life, it's what you do."

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The Utah Jazz will try to accomplish today what most NBA experts predicted could never happen to the Chicago Bulls. That is to hand Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls three consecutive losses.

The Bulls won both their home games last week and the Utah Jazz won their two home games with the third game scheduled for Wednesday night in Utah. The Jazz need to win Wednesday, and hope to win one of the two games in Chicago. Last week I predicted that the team that wins one game on the road will win the NBA championship. I still think the Jazz have a great opportunity to become the NBA's new champion.

The A's (26-37) are still having their problems with pitching but have been winning some games by scoring more runs than their opponents. The Giants (35-26) lost two of three to the Braves this weekend, but they continue to hold on to the lead in the N.L. West.

Major League Baseball history will take place this week on Thursday, June 12, with the introduction of interleague play. For the first time in baseball history the American and National leagues will play each other in their divisions (West vs. West, etc.) -- a total of 16 games, eight at home and eight on the road.

The only other times the league showcase their players against each other are during the World Series and All Star games. But with baseball attendance down in most ballparks, the two leagues decided it was time for change.

The A's will host the Los Angeles Dodgers at the Oakland Coliseum on Thursday, June 12, at 7:05 p.m. and again on Friday night. The Dodgers' Hideo Nomo is scheduled to pitch on Thursday. The Colorado Rockies invade Oakland on Saturday and Sunday with game times starting at 1:05 p.m., and then the San Diego Padres close out this historic week of baseball with night games on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Giants play their first interleague games Tuesday night in Texas against former Giants All-Star Will Clark and the Rangers. Then the Giants head for Disneyland for a two game set against the Anaheim Angels before they return home for a two game stand against Ken Griffey Jr. and the Seattle Mariners on June 17 and 18.

The boxing show at Arco Arena last Saturday turned out to be a great evening of boxing for a small but enthusiastic crowd of 3,381 fans. West Sacramento's undefeated Willie Jorrin improved his record to 17-0, with an impressive 10 round unanimous decision over the WBC 6th ranked Jr. Lightweight Enrique Jupiter of Mexico. Jorrin, who weighed in at 124 pounds, knocked the more experienced Jupiter to the canvas in the third round with a stunning right hand to the jaw of the tough Mexican fighter. Jupiter managed to get up at the count of nine and survived the last two minutes of the round by hanging on to Jorrin until the bell rang. Jorrin's victory will probably move him into the top ten ranks for Jr. Lightweight, and Willie has been promised a title shot at the end of the summer against Lou Duva's fighter Junior Jones.

See ya next week!

Bevins goes to Cardinals

51-year West Sacramento residents Marty and Mary Hock have received word that their grandson, Andy Bevins, has been drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals baseball club.

Andy graduated from San Diego State University last week, where he received a degree in journalism, and was also named the "Scholar Athlete" several times.

This past season, he ended with a batting average of .374 and was selected to the Western Athletic Conference second team.

Andy's mother, Marcia, went to James Marshall High School in West Sacramento her freshman year before the family moved to South Lake Tahoe. She resides in Sacramento and works for the Elk Grove School District.

Her son, Todd, is a freshman at Sacramento High School and is a member of the student council and plays baseball and football for the Dragons.

Runners fight leukemia —

West Sacramentans Andy and Karen Salm will run a marathon (26.2 miles) on June 21 as part of a fundraiser to find a cure for leukemia.

The pair report they are training four to five hours per day for the event, and note that next month, the city of West Sacramento will be dedicating its new Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge in the memory of a victim of the disease.

The Salms will dedicate the final mile of their marathon to the memory of West Sacramento adults and children fighting leukemia.

Residents may help the pair raise money to fight leukemia by donating to "The Leukemia Society -- Runners 731/732," and mailing this check to The Leukemia Society, c/o SMC, P.O. Box 649, West Sacramento, CA 95691. For information, call 369-7581.

'Crew' camp offered at port

The River City Rowing Club, based at the Port of Sacramento in West Sacramento, is offering a summer camp in rowing, or "crew," from June 18 to July 3.

Camp is open to all 8th through 12th graders. The cost is $30, which includes a T-shirt, and the session ends with a barbeque, included with the cost, to which parents are invited.

Participants will spend sunny afternoons on the calm waters of the port, learning the fundamentals of rowing.

For information, call Aron Bruhn at 758-2220 or Chad Fleschner at 750-0597.

Ups & downs at the schools

While it is encouraging that the next W.U.S.D. superintendent, Dr. Dennis Kelleher, was selected on a unanimous vote, the manner in which the vote was taken was somewhat disappointing.

After the previous superintendent (who is actually now a lame-duck, biding his remaining contract time on vacation) was eased out of office by a school board majority, the board made no serious moves towards including public input in its selection process for a replacement.

In fact, the board never announced that it had a selection process for a new superintendent. The board agenda item Monday in which the board's unofficial choice of Kelleher was made official came with a minimum amount of public notice -- enough to be legal, but not enough to be inclusive.

Though the public widely know Kelleher was the behind-the-scenes choice of the board does not mitigate the fact that they were never given a voice in this matter.

Let's hope the public can get behind this choice anyway, and the district can move on in a new spirit of openness.

Why is it necessary for a Sacramento area, regional television station to make such a big deal out of the events surrounding a River City High School teacher who has been accused of downloading images of child pornography at an office far away from his school room?

True, this is local news. It is of interest to West Sacramentans, who are dealing with the fallout, and to Davis residents, in whose community the alleged crime occurred. And patronizing child pornography should indeed by a crime, because children are victimized in order to create child pornography.

But where's the sense of perspective among regional news agencies? No one has accused the teacher of abusing any of his students. It is not necessary to bring a news crew to R.C.H.S. to interview students who know little of the true allegations and then broadcast their opinions of his guilt. It just isn't that big of a story.

Surely there were matters of more pressing concern to Sacramento at the time.

The answer, of course, is that one man's tragedy (and it has been a tragedy for the teacher and for his family, whether or not he is found guilty) is another one's sensational news for the evening, and this is a system we support.

Bilingual cop needed

An open letter to the West Sacramento Chief of Police:

I hear that officer Juan Barcenas is going to be transferred from his assignment as the school resource officer. I am sure that you have another bilingual person to fill the position. I am also sure that you are aware of the ethnic make-up of our student population. It would be unfortunate if our Hispanic youth were deprived of this valuable resource.

In a city such as ours with its diverse population it is always important that those in the decision making positions be aware of the needs of the various segments of our local society.

We have been fortunate to have such a dedicated person as officer Barcenas to serve in this crucial position. He is not only bi-lingual but also bi-cultural and has a long history of service to the youth of our community.

We in West Sacramento can be proud of our safe school campuses and we must give officer Barcenas a great deal of credit for this situation.

Chief, we can appreciate your thoughts about rotating your officers but please do not ignore the population you are sworn to serve. Please either replace Barcenas with a bi-lingual officer or leave him in his present position.

Thanks for donations

The Letter Carriers of the West Sacramento Post Office would like to extend a big thank you to all of the generous residents that participated in the National Association of Letter Carriers National Food drive last month. Nearly 6,000 pounds of food was collected by the local letter carriers while on their rounds the day before Mother's Day. Some letter carriers had to make a trip back to the Post Office to unload the collected food so they could get to the mail that was still in their trucks.

A few employees that had the day off should get special attention. One was Bo Von Hoffmann who not only donated this time but the use of his personal vehicle as well. He went around and unloaded the collected food from many of the letter carriers vehicles so they didn't have to make a special trip back to the office. Another big helper who had the day off was custodian, Frank Bzick. He helped load, unload and drive the big truck to the drop off point at Holy Cross School. Supervisor, Deborah Singer, also went above and beyond the call of duty with all of her help.

This was just part of the NALC goal of 70,000,000 pounds of food that was targeted for the entire nation this year. West Sacramento residents did their part and everyone is grateful for your help. All of the food collected by the West Sacramento letter carriers was distributed to local food banks and stays with the needy right here in our area. That is a great feature of this major food drive. It was reported that this is the largest one day food drive by one organization anywhere in the entire world.

Again, thanks to each and every one of you that helped make this food drive a huge success. The letter carriers of West Sacramento are very proud of the community for their overwhelming support in this project.

Keep principals

I have some strong concerns and feel the possible plans of the current Washington Unified School District Administration and School Board should be made known. According to what I have heard they are planning to rotate the principals from their current school sites to others within our district. It is my understanding that only the elementary schools will be affected. This is a horrible idea. It is not in the best interest of our children. Our children and staff need stability! Why must it be when things are calm and peaceful in our district, someone has to cause trouble? Are we trying to compete with Sac City School District?

To my knowledge, the current school situations seem to be running fine. I know for a fact that Westmore Oaks is doing wonderful. Our principal has done a terrific job. Not everyone will agree with every decision made with anyone who has to make strong decisions, but the bottom line is how are things going at the school?

The children of Westmore Oaks love our principal, Eileen Kleiser, and would be devastated if she were to leave. Her first and foremost concern is the best interest of our children. We have made great progress and improvements at our school. Over the last few years, with Ms. Kleiser's direction, we have built a stronger PTA and have gained a wonderful group of volunteers.

This type of drastic change would cause far too much turmoil at the school site. How could we as parents expect this not to impact our children, especially at the beginning of a school year?

Children need stability, security and nurturing. It can be very traumatic when such extreme changes are made. Unfortunately, many times, school is the only place some children get that stability and nurturing they need. Why fix something that isn't broken? Why not focus on real issues such as the Southport School which has yet to be started?

As parents, we can make a difference. But only if we join together and make our voices heard! Please join myself and other concerned parents before it's too late, by calling your current school board members and the Washington Unified School District office to voice your concerns. Also, talk to your teachers and staff at your schools to find out their opinions with this situation. Most of all, talk to everyone you know and get them involved.

Two-way street

Sacramento (officials) have previously talked of running a "bypass I-5/Old Sacramento" through West Sac without including in such plans direct connections between I-5 and West Sac, but now Sacramento proposes to run their Natomas expansion/sewer line through West Sac to Elk Grove as an unpaid precondition for West Sac being allowed to hook up to Elk Grove's plant.

Both sides should share the savings from running the Natomas expansion sewer through West Sac vs. tearing up and expanding existing lines through Sacramento's streets -- not to mention other inconveniences. Also, if West Sac's existing sewage plant continues to operate, Sacramento's district (that operates the Elk Grove and other such plants) should assume responsibility for same so that Sacramento will no longer be able to use the "malfunctioning of same" as a leverage when both sides compete for major projects like state office buildings.

BE LESS PRODUCTIVE AT THE OFFICE.

The office has always been a place to get ahead. Unfortunately, it's also a place where a lot of natural resources start to fall behind. Take a look around the next time you're at work. See how many lights are left on when people leave. See how much paper is being wasted. How much electricity is being used to run computers that are left on. Look at how much water is being wasted in the restrooms. And how much solid waste is being thrown out in the trash cans. We bet it's a lot.

It takes 95% less energy to manufacture products from recycled materials.

Now, here are some simple ways you can produce less waste at work. When you're at the copier, only make the copies you need. Use both sides of the paper when writing a memo. Turn off your light when you leave. Use a lower watt bulb in your lamps. Drink your coffee or tea out of mugs instead of throwaway cups. Set up a recycling bin for aluminum cans and one for bottles. And when you're in the bathroom brushing your teeth or washing your face, don't let the faucet run.

Drink out of mugs instead of throwaway cups.

Remember, if we use fewer resources today, we'll save more for tomorrow. Which would truly be a job well done.

The Sacramento River registered 4 feet 1 inch U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday

The utility or inutility of weirs in the Sacramento River is being exemplified at this moment at the mouth of the American River where a great sand bar stops navigation, or in a few days will completely prevent any steamers from going up stream. The most northerly weir in the Sacramento River above Rocky Point is separated from the sandbank by only a few feet and the river current is only wide enough for a small steamer to get by. Besides the turn in the channel is so sharp that in a few days no steamer drawing more than three feet of water can pass this point. Two years ago when a protest was registered with Colonel Rand about the building of these weirs he wasn't at all modest about telling the Washington Improvement Club that their case was not to be considered, for it must be "the greatest good for the greatest number," meaning that if weirs were to be built in the river channel they would be built for the benefit of Sacramento, leaving Yolo County out in the cold. Evidently Colonel Rand forgot that the steamers plying on the river were mostly owned by Sacramento people.

EXTENSION OF JITNEY SERVICE TAKEN UP AGAIN

At the request of the Washington Improvement Club a committee, consisting of E. A. Palm and P. A. Fitzgerald, called on C. W. McKillup, Superintendent of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, last Tuesday, asking that the question of extension of jitney service to Washington and Riverbank be taken up.

Mr. McKillup assured the committee that he would take the matter up with the corporation, but personally he could extend no hope for the extension, because at this writing the jitney service in Sacramento is far from being satisfactory either in a financial way or as a substitute for street car service.

When West Sacramento townsite was opeend up this question was considered and a bonus was offered to make good any deficit that might occur through the service. The P. G. & E. could not see a chance to make a gain and hence the installation of the West Side Railroad, which still operates cars to West Sacramento headquarters.

Mr. McKillup assured the committee that he would be able to answer one way or the other before the next meeting of the club.

This question was brought up at the meeting of the Improvement Club on June 1st. One of those preesnt asked the Chairman "What can be done to start things going in Washington in the most lively way?" One lady replied that she thought if street car service was supplied, following the installation of a gas supply, the advancement would be well on its way in a substantial manner.

The next meeting of the club will likely be able to return some satisfactory answer on this question.

The application of District No. 785 in Yolo County to raise and widen its levee along the Sacramento River, has been set for hearing on June 18th, by the State Reclamation Board. POPULATION OF WASHINGTON ESTIMATED AT 1500

In an effort to arrive at the exact population of the town of Washington, the Independent wrote Congressman C. F. Curry on May 11th, asking that as soon as the Census Bureau could secure it the figure be sent to this paper.

In reply Congressman Curry wrote under date of June 2d.

House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C.
June 2, 1920.

P. A. Fitzgerald, Esq., The Independent, Broderick, Calif.

My Dear Mr. Fitzgerald:

When I received your favor of the 11th ult. in reference to the population of the town of Washington, Yolo County (Postoffice Broderick) I took the matter up with the Director of the Census.

It has been impossible to secure the 1920 census report of the population of Washington, Calif., as the town is unincorporated and the Bureau does not compile the population statistics of unincorporated towns. The Director of the Census made an effort to secure the information you wished for me, but has been unable to do so.

I am very sorry that my letter does not contain more favorable information. With best wishes, believe me.

Sincerely yours,
C. F. CURRY.

Judging from the fact that at this writing there is not a vacant house in Washington, Riverbank or West Sacramento, it is estimated that the population of those three is fully 1500 people.

Later on the exact figure may be procurred and as a request of this paper stands for an answer at the Census Bureau an answer may be expected soon.

In the first Supervisor District of Yolo County, that is the portion contiguous to Sacramento and immediately tributary thereto, the population is estimated at about 4500.

This population is composed mostly of home owners, farmers and a very prosperous class of people. These people do all their trading in Sacramento, going to Woodland, the county seat, only on rare occasions for legal business and for tax paying.

The business of this portion of Yolo County is transacted almost entirely in Sacramento.

It extends from Elk Horn to the southern extremity of the county and includes the rich district north of Washington, West Sacramento, the Lisbon District, the Holland Land Company, Clarksburg and a great stretch of very valuable land south of Clarksburg.

More families have been added every day to this district and a constant stream of trade is pouring into the capital city over the bridges that cross the river and the ferries that ply thereon.

TWO MORE STOCK INSPECTORS NAMED FOR YOLO COUNTY

The Department of Agriculture, Office of Cattle Protection, has appointed two additional inspectors to represent the Office of Cattle Protection in Yolo County, viz: L. J. Hoffman, Fifth and Beamer streets, Woodland, who is to take care of the inspections at Yolo, Woodland, Davis, Knights Landing and Merrits. E. B. Hart, Winters, is to take care of the inspections at Winters. Hoffman and Hart are succeeding L. W. Bryant, our former inspector at Yolo, who has resigned.

Cattle will not be accepted at any shipping point or by any common carrier unless a certificate of inspection, issued by the inspector is filed with the agent therefor at time of shipment. All cattle to be slaughtered must be inspected at the slaughterhouse by the inspector for marks and brands before the same can be slaughtered.

No person can engage in the slaughtering of cattle as a business before obtaining a license from the State and filing a bond in compliance with the law. Failure to do so renders the person so doing liable to fine and imprisonment and closes his slaughter house for a period of one year.

Bills of sale must be obtained when cattle are purchased and must be shown to the inspector. All cattlemen who intend to ship cattle and all slaughterers intending to slaughter cattle purchased by them must inform the inspector at least 24 hours before shipment or before cattle are slaughtered, by notifying the inspector nearest the shipping corral or slaughter house.

GORED TO DEATH BY VICIOUS BULL NEAR FREEPORT

John C. Yenger, a dairyman of Freeport, was gored to death early Wednesday by a bull. Yenger died before aid could reach him after the infuriated animal had pierced his abdomen.

The bull, known to be particularly dangerous, had been kept chained in a corral. At about 5 o'clock Wednesday morning Yenger, who has been a dairyman in the Freeport district for many years, discovered that the bull had broken loose, and gone to the pasture. He attempted to drive the animal back into the corral.

The bull attacked his owner and drove his horns into Yenger's body. Death came almost instantaneously. The body was taken charge of by Coroner John T. Skelton of Sacramento County.

Yenger leaves a widow and taree small children. He was 50 years old and a native of Iowa.

PEAR CROP ESTIMATED AT 1500 TONS.

WOODLAND, June 2.—The Yolo County pear crop for 1920 was estimated at 1500 tons for a minimum yield this morning by County Horticultural Commissioner Wm. Gould in his report to the California Pear Growers' Association.

The normal crop runs about 2500 tons, but considering climatic conditions, the yield is more than expected by the growers. The largest orchard is the Rose orchard near Sacramento, on this side of the river. Here the Bartlett crop will be almost up to normal, though the cost of maintaining this average will reduce the profit far below normal.

Sac to relieve traffic for Old Sac and downtown Sac should include access to and from I-5 (both directions) for West Sac. If constructed properly, it would our Southport area direct connections to and from South Sacramento, preferably far north of Florin Road.

How much will it cost West Sacramentans? Existing homes, businesses and future development...one side of river vs. other side. West Sac gives up control of future costs with but one of several votes, right?

Any agreement on the above should also include further security for YoloBus' access to/from Sac Int'l Airport after the two year "trial run."

Cooperation is a two-way street, folks.

WILLIAM A. LOWELL
West Sacramento

Editor's note: Many readers continue to ask about the proposed I-5 bypass through West Sacramento. This proposal, at least for the moment, is dead. Sacramento did not pursue federal funding to do a feasibility study on the idea of running a freeway bypass from I-5 in southern Sacramento County, across the river and northwards through Yolo County to West Sacramento's I-80/Capitol City Freeway interchange area.

Should the idea be revived, the News-Ledger will keep its readers posted.

The Porcelain Dove.* Delia Sherman. Dutton. 399 pages.

Eighteenth Century France is the setting for this novel which weaves historical fact with "beguiling romance and dazzling revelation." Enlightenment challenges age-old superstitions and aristocrats are slow to heed its consequences. Berthe Duvet, lifelong maid to Adele du Fourchet, witnesses the excess, depravedly, and madness of French aristocracy as the French Revolution looms. Only a porcelain dove will save du Fourchet's family.

Minnow Knits: Uncommon Clothes to Knit for Kids.* Jil Eaton. Lark Books. 123 pages.

Trying to find the perfect baby gift? Wondering what the kids or grandkids will like for Christmas? Minnow Knits is a wonderful collection of colorful and unique clothes for kids. Internationally acclaimed designer Jil Eaton provides advice, patterns, and instruction on how to knit everything from rompers and playsuits to party dresses and sweaters designed for children. Twenty-four projects are included for children ages 3 months to 10 years. Her styles are vibrant, creative and uncommon.

The Watchman: The Twisted Life and Crimes of Serial Hacker Kevin Poulsen.* Jonathan Littman. Little, Brown & Co. 289 pages.

From the author of The Fugitive Games, Jonathan Littman writes an explosive account of the most elusive cyberspace hacker of all time -- Kevin Poulsen. Arrested as a teen for hacking into Pac Bell phone networks, Poulsen was rewarded with a job at a Silicon Valley defense firm. He soon began to hack his way into the nation's phone networks, winning radio game shows, reaping profits from defunct escort services, and eavesdropping on Hollywood stars. This case illustrates the growing vulnerability of our private to cyberspace electronics.

New Books

New books for young readers include The West and People of the West by Dayton Duncan. These handsomely illustrated and well written texts examine the settling of the Old West and the special people who settled there and the problems they faced. Each book is based on the PBS documentary by filmmakers Stephen Ives, Ken Burns, and Geoffrey Ward, and provides a lavish pictorial display of this fascinating period of American history. Terry Dunnahoo's Sacramento, California, part of the Places in American History Series, is a concise yet detailed history of Sacramento. Professor of English and writer of children's literature, the author examines the Gold Rush, Sutter's Fort, and Old Sacramento. Locals will enjoy the historical artifacts many now take for granted.

Scary Readers Theatre: Scary Stories from Around the World and Holiday Readers Theatre by Suzanne Barchers and Charla Pfeffinger, respectively, are two new additions that teachers will find useful. Written for grades 3 to 8, each book includes several short plays complete with scripts and descriptions for props. Whether you are looking for a creative way to celebrate Martin Luther King Day, Presidents' Day, Christmas or a variety of other holidays or examining cultural differences through folktales, myths, and ghost stories, these plays are sure to inform and entertain students.
